VALUETRONICS HOLDINGS LIMITED
Annual General Meeting – 28 July 2025
Shareholders' Questions & Answers

Q1. A shareholder enquired about the Company's new joint venture investment - Trio AI Limited ("TrioAI"). He asked if there was any specific niche Graphics Processing Unit ("GPU") opportunity that the TrioAI may have identified within the cloud services market.

The Chairman explained that commonly known GPUs in the Hong Kong market are dominated by Western-designed brands. Due to geopolitical challenges, Hong Kong faces difficulty in acquiring the latest Western-designed models. Hence, this created an opportunity for Chinese GPU brands to enter the Hong Kong market.

TrioAI was a strategic investment aimed at leveraging the expertise of the joint venture partner, Sinnet Cloud HK Limited ("Sinnet Cloud") to provide GPU and AI-related value-added cloud services in Hong Kong. The partner's parent company, Sinnet Cloud Co. Ltd has an established presence in China and offers similar services in China, bringing valuable experience to the venture.

On its part, the Company had incorporated a wholly-owned subsidiary, Computing Assets Limited, for the acquisition and deployment of MetaX GPU and related ancillary hardware, which are then leased to TrioAI.

The Company had strategically selected MetaX GPUs, developed by a leading Chinese technology firm, given their compliance with technical standards that were comparable to established Western counterparts. As the first mover in introducing MetaX GPUs to Hong Kong's mass market, the Company is establishing a leadership position in driving local adoption. By leveraging Sinnet Cloud's proven expertise in deploying GPU and AI-related value-added cloud services in China, the venture is uniquely positioned to enable Hong Kong enterprises — including semi-government organisations — to embrace MetaX GPUs with confidence.

As TrioAI is still in its early stages, the Company treats this initiative as an investment, with day-to-day operations managed by Sinnet Cloud. The Chairman further noted that market adoption of Chinese GPUs will require time, as potential users have to be educated and encouraged to transition from widely adopted Western GPU brands to Chinese alternatives, which operate on comparable computing standards.

Q2. A shareholder enquired about the Company's rationale for opting for a share buyback program over a dividend declaration or alternative capital distribution options.

The Chairman responded that the share buyback program was initiated and implemented in 2022, with an approved allocation of up to HK$250 million for this purpose. He further explained that both the share buyback program and dividend are different mechanisms to provide overall shareholders' return.

- Q3. A shareholder observed that the FY2024 Annual Report highlighted four key customers, as part of a rebalanced portfolio. However, the FY2025 Annual Report merely referenced revenue contributions from the two customers. The shareholder sought clarification on the status of these customers and whether they remain active clients of the Company.

The Chairman clarified that all four customers were considered new. However, the two customers highlighted in the FY2025 Annual Report had progress faster than expected and contributed revenue to the Company. As for the other two customers, the Chairman noted their products were very unique and held growth potential, they have entered mass production and Company continues to be active engaging with them.

- Q4. A shareholder inquired about potential new customers currently in the pipeline, of both in Vietnam and China, and also enquired on the current utilization rate of the Vietnam campus.

Regarding potential new customers, the Chairman explained that there are pipelines in progress. The details will be disclosed to shareholders through result announcements, once these opportunities are confirmed, in line with the Company's usual practice of keeping shareholders informed.

The Chairman provided an update on the development of the Vietnam campus, stating that two out of three floors of the factory building are close to fully occupied. As a result, the Group began renovating the third floor, including electrical and mechanical installations during the last quarter of FY2025. Once ready, it will expand the Vietnam production floor capacity by about 40%.

- Q5. A shareholder inquired whether the Company is on track to regain the strong performance it had achieved in 2021 and asked about the potential impact of the recently announced US tariffs on the business.

The Chairman explained that the global landscape has significantly changed since 2021, making it difficult to draw direct comparisons with the current environment in 2025. He noted that with the imposition of new US tariffs, the global market has become less efficient. This shift will likely result in higher costs and lower efficiency across the overall global market.

Reflecting on 2021, the Chairman highlighted that the Company had experienced extraordinary growth because of the Covid-19 environment, when their orders were front-loaded. However, demand has since normalised, and so did revenue contributions from those customers.

Additionally, one CE customer was unable to provide reasonable returns, prompting the Company to gradually scale down this CE business relationship over the past few years with plans to phase it out eventually because these factors have contributed to the decline in CE revenue trends seen in recent years.

Despite these challenges, the Chairman noted that new customers from both CE and ICE are helping to offset previous revenue shortfalls. More importantly, these new customers offer stronger growth potential and better cost-reward structures, positioning the Company well for future growth.

Regarding the impact of tariffs on the Company, the Chairman explained that in 2019, the Company strategically established a manufacturing footprint in Vietnam to serve the needs of its customers, enabling the gradual transfer of tariff-sensitive products to this facility.

Q6. A shareholder referenced the Chairman's Statement on value-added manufacturing and the TrioAI investment, asked about the Company's long-term vision.

The Chairman emphasised that the EMS industry is very unique, with no universal strategy or model that can be applied to all companies or situations. The Company's success depends on understanding customer profiles, aligning with the Company's core strengths, and adapting to the operating environment.

He explained that the Company's operations in China and Vietnam were complementary. The China campus remains the Company's main R&D centre for New Product Introduction and development due to the speed and maturity of technological expertise. The Company also seconded talent from the China campus to Vietnam to build up capabilities, leveraging experience and knowledge.

Regarding AI, Chairman shared that the Company was currently piloting AI applications in its factories to make selected process more efficient. One key initiative involves using AI computing power to monitor packaging lines and detect potential risks based on preset instructions. This was an important preliminary stage to assess the feasibility and potential integration of AI capabilities into manufacturing operations.

Q7. A shareholder noted the ongoing renovation of the third storey at the Vietnam campus and acknowledged the difference in knowledge and skill sets between the Vietnam and China teams. He asked whether there is an anticipated timeline for the Vietnam workforce to reach the same competency level as the China plant.

The Chairman acknowledged that there were knowledge gaps and skill sets between the Vietnam and China teams. To bridge the gap, the Company has proactively implemented a robust digital monitoring platform coupled with specific training programs to ensure that all Vietnamese staff were proficient in their areas of work. The Vietnam campus also monitors output and yield at each production station, triggering alerts if performance falls below pre-defined output levels. Additionally, qualified and trained workers are assigned to oversee each station, ensuring consistent performance. This setup strengthens the Company's position in reassuring customers when shifting their products from China to Vietnam.

Q8. A shareholder inquired about the factors contributed to the significant increase in other non-current assets.

The Chairman updated that the increase in other non-current assets was due to prepayments for property, plant, and equipment, including renovation for Vietnam campus and purchase of GPUs and servers.

- Q9. A shareholder noted the interest income of approximately HKD52 million disclosed in the Annual Report's financial statements. The shareholder observed that if this interest income were to be removed, profit before tax excluding other gains and losses has gone down. He also noted the Company's strong pool of cash and asked if the Company had any plans for the money.

The Chairman clarified that, even excluding interest income, the Company's gross profit margin has continued to improve. Regarding the Company's high cash levels, he emphasised that rather than distributing all cash to shareholders, the Company follows a formal dividend policy that provides shareholders with transparency, predictability, and consistency, reinforcing confidence in the Company's disciplined capital management.

Given the current uncertainties, the Company aims to strike a balance in which Management focuses on improving turnover and profitability while adhering to the dividend policy to ensure shareholder returns. The Chairman also highlighted that, as shown on page 4 of the Annual Report, the dividend payout ratio has been gradually increasing from year to year to thank shareholders for their continued support to the Company.

- Q10. A shareholder enquired about the percentage of pure contract manufacturing services versus value-added services such as co-design and co-engineering.

The Chairman explained that the Company generally does not charge customers separately for engineering services, as these has been included as part of the overall service offering.

- Q11. A shareholder noted the Chairman's statement about phased out traditional consumer lifestyle products, sought clarification on whether these customers belong to the CE or ICE segments. The shareholder further inquired whether the resources released from this phase-out, in terms of plant and machinery, will be restricted for use within the CE or ICE segments.

The Chairman clarified that the phased-out customer is from the CE segment, due to low margins and insufficient scale from one legacy CE customer and hence, not broad base. He further explained that PPE such as SMT machinery and plastic injection machinery can be commonly used across both CE and ICE customers.

- Q12. A shareholder noted the Company has deployed MetaX GPUs. He enquired about the performance of the MetaX GPUs operating in China across this large cluster?

The Chairman commented that the Company had thoroughly assessed the background and compatibility of the chosen GPUs before making the purchase decisions.

Q13. A shareholder noted from the Annual Report that a significant portion of the Company's cash holdings was denominated in USD, while the Company's shares are quoted in SGD. Given the recent depreciation of USD, the shareholder asked for the Company's view on how this currency movement might impact the share price.

The Chairman explained that most of its cash is held in USD was due to the nature of its USD-denominated sales and cost structure. With HKD pegged to USD, currency fluctuations have minimal impact and provides a natural hedge. He emphasised that there was minimal direct correlation between the share price and the currency denomination of the Company's cash holdings.

Q14. A shareholder asked whether the Company expects to pass on tariff costs to its customers and what impact higher tariffs might have on the business, including the potential for reduced demand.

The Chairman clarified that the Company sells on Free on Board (FOB) intercom term, and that import tariffs were borne by the respective US customers. The global economy appears to be entering a new era of elevated trade tariffs, triggering significant volatility in global markets, with rising concerns over supply chain disruptions and recessionary pressures. We are closely monitoring the situation.

Q15. A shareholder noted that the Annual Report does not provide a segment revenue breakdown and requested clarification. The shareholder also asked for further elaboration on revenue contributions from the CE and ICE segments, including the names of key customers.

The CFO directed shareholders to page 56 - 58 of the Annual Report for details on revenue and segment information. He explained that the Company classifies CE and ICE customers based on end applications, whereas CE products are typically consumer-focused, and ICE products cater to enterprise customers in a B2B context. For the examples of CE and ICE products, shareholders were encouraged to refer to the full-year results presentation slides announced on SGX.

Q16. A shareholder requested clarification of the Company's dividend policy. The shareholder also inquired whether there is any relationship between dividend payouts, the Company's substantial cash reserves, and its net profit.

The Chairman explained that the Company's formal dividend policy targets an annual payout between 30% and 50% of net profits attributable to shareholders. He clarified that recent years' payout ratios had exceeded 50% mainly due to special dividend declarations. Regarding the relationship between dividend payments and the Company's substantial cash reserves, the Chairman clarified that the Company's dividend payout takes into multiple consideration, with further details outlined in the Dividend Policy section of the Corporate Governance Report within the Annual Report.

Q17. A shareholder asked whether the Company undertakes inventory risk on behalf of its customers.

The Chairman explained that the Company operates on a purchase-to-order basis, and hence, acquires inventory according to customer purchase orders.

Q18. A shareholder asked if there were any comments on analyst's review or report on the Company's performance and share price.

The Chairman explained that the Company does not comment on analyst reports.
